

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 709

At beginning of the game, the two little boys stood on both sides. Rosalie and Byron were in the middle.

“1,2,3, wooden man!”

After waiting for them to walk for a while, Estie suddenly turned around.

The four froze in place.

The two little guys were still a little unsteady, and their bodies were crooked. They shook a few times before they barely stabilized.

Fortunately, Estie only cared about being able to play together, she did not mind the slight bobble and quickly turned around again.

When they started to walk again, it was uncertain if the little boys were too anxious that they kept squeezing into the middle.

Rosalie looked helplessly at Lucian beside her.

Lucian was looking at Estie standing in the middle with all his attention, his little face was full of seriousness.

It seems that the purpose of his walking toward the middle was just to be able to touch Estie as soon as possible.

Seeing this, Rosalie sighed lightly and silently moved to the middle to make way for the little guy.

On the other hand, Byron also noticed Nox's actions and felt that the little guy's actions were a little strange, but he could not figure him out.

After all, if the little guy was really eager to win the game. He should go ahead of them, but this little guy walked like a little crab, squeezing him blindly.

Although he did not know what his purpose was, Byron subconsciously walked toward the middle to make way for the little guy.

Just as the two of them were paying attention to the little boys beside them, Estie in front suddenly turned around and shouted in her cheeky voice. “1,2,3, wooden man!”

Lucian took a step just as she spoke. Unable to get a firm footing, he stumbled again.

Rosalie frowned slightly, afraid that the existing space was not enough for the boy to stand firm. She did not care whether she would be eliminated, so she carefully moved a step toward the middle to make room for the little boy.

Just as she stepped out, she unexpectedly stepped on something.

Rosalie was stunned for a moment and immediately looked down.

On the other side, Byron was deceived by Nox with the same trick and went toward the inner side to make way for the little guy.

As soon as he stood firm, someone stepped on the back of his foot.

Looking down, he saw that the woman beside him had looked back with some embarrassment.

The only thing was, the space on the other side was completely occupied by Lucian. Rosalie withdrew her feet, but there was nowhere to land.

For a while, Rosalie could only stand on one foot awkwardly, looking helplessly at Estie in front of her. She hoped that she could turn around quickly.

Otherwise, she really would not be able to stand properly.

The little girl seemed to read her mind, she squinted her eyes and smiled before turning around slowly.

Rosalie was about to settle down when she heard the little girl's voice again. "Wooden man!"

"Whoa..." Rosalie was startled and could not place her foot properly. Her body swayed violently, and she fell toward the front.

Seeing this scene, the three little ones were all nervous.

They were afraid that Rosalie would really fall, and they were also afraid that Byron would miss this opportunity.

Amidst the panic, Rosalie instinctively reached out, trying to grab something to hold on to.

However, the moment she stretched out her hands, she remembered that they had deliberately chosen an open place. Naturally, there was nothing around her to grab for support.

Just when she wanted to withdraw her hand, the hand that was still in the air was suddenly held firmly by a large hand. Then, she was pulled into a somewhat hard embrace.

"Wow..." The kids could not help but sigh in awe when they saw their daddy's swift movements.
