

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 718

Although Estie was reluctant, knowing that Daddy was pursuing Auntie and they would come here often in the future, she obediently got off the sofa. She softly bade goodbye to Rosalie, then left with Byron.

Rosalie and the two little boys watched Byron's car drive away, then they turned back to the villa.

The little boys had been up playing for a day. Plus, they had been worrying about the two adults. Now that they had settled down, they started to yawn non-stop.

It was getting late, so Rosalie simply tucked the boys into bed. She then went into the study again.

As the top medical family in Somerland, the Lancer family had attracted much attention despite being low-profile for many years.

With the research institute built this time, it was no longer a secret as soon as it was completed.

For this cooperation, the Lancer family did not intend to keep a low profile. They would soon reveal the list of partners to the public.

At that time, for ordinary people in Somerland, this list not only represented the cooperation partners of the Lancer family but also the top doctors in the country indicated to them by the Lancer family.

As a member of the list, Rosalie had to work hard to improve her medical skills in order not to disappoint everyone.

Just as she was studying medical books, the phone beside her suddenly rang.

Rosalie glanced at it. It was Xander's phone number.

Seeing this, Rosalie picked it up without hesitation. "Young Master Xander, it's so late. What's the matter?"

Xander pressed his eyebrows, his voice a little heavy. "Miss Jacobs, you should still remember what happened last time. The lady from the Hudson family? The one who drank too much and caused a drunken ruckus."

Hearing this, Rosalie jogged her memory for a while to recall this person.

During this time, her mind was almost wholly occupied by Byron and her personal projects. If Xander had not mentioned it, she would have forgotten all about that woman.

"Ah yes, I remember, what's wrong?" she asked in confusion.

Xander explained. "My grandfather suddenly called me back at noon today because of this matter. He wanted me to initiate this. Stacy Hudson wants to apologize to you in person, what do you think? If you don't want to go, it's okay. I'll help you reject it."

Rosalie hesitated for a while.

According to what Xander just said, this matter was old Master Lancer's request.

Although she felt that there was no need to meet, since the old man said so, she naturally had to oblige.

On the other end, Xander seemed to have guessed what she was thinking and added in a deep voice, "Don't worry about my grandfather. He won't question you because of such irrelevant things."

Hearing him extend that kindness to herself, Rosalie smiled gratefully. She responded calmly, "It's okay. If Miss Hudson really has the heart to apologize, then I'm okay with meeting her. Maybe we can be friends."

Xander did not expect that she would agree so willingly. He was stunned for a few seconds before wrinkling his eyebrows. He reminded her, "It's okay to be friends but with her temper, I'm surprised that she's willing to apologize. I'm just worried this meeting won't be very pleasant."

Rosalie had only met with Stacy once, and she did not know much about her.

Rosalie's heart could not help but feel a little heavy over what Xander said, but she still cared about what the old man would think of her. "Thank you for reminding me. I'll be more careful on the day we meet."

The Lancer family would announce the list of partners soon. Rosalie was even more cautious to not cause any unnecessary trouble.

Xander responded with a deep voice, and the two simply said good night before hanging up.
