

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 728

Rosalie wanted to make a statement of her own.

However, she only used her social media to browse the news on weekdays. It was practically a blank account. Even if she posted something, people might not see it.

After thinking about it, Rosalie ended up calling Yves. She asked him to use the research institute's account to make a statement.

Although the research institute did not have that much popularity, it was at least much better than using her own account.

"What's going on?" Yves had been busy making his way to the research institute early that morning and did not know about the news until Rosalie called him.

Seeing the photos of Rosalie and Xander getting along in the news, Yves only felt a pain in his heart.

Rosalie sighed helplessly. "I'm not able to explain it properly either. In short, what happened yesterday was just a misunderstanding. Xander and I weren't the only ones at the dinner."

Hearing her explanation, Yves' mood was still low, but he held onto the thought that it might be a fluke and persuaded himself to believe Rosalie's words. 1

After all, if he did not believe her, those who were hurling Rosalie abuse on the internet would not believe it either.

Moreover, Rosalie did not seem to have a reason to lie about this matter too.

Thinking of this, Yves breathed a sigh of relief and responded in a deep voice, "I understand. I'll make a statement right away."

Rosalie affirmed and hung up the phone.

Half an hour later, statements from Xander and the research institute were released at almost the same time. They soon topped the trending search.

The two social media posts were filled with contest and abuse. Very few people believe them.

Netizens directly questioned the Lancer family under Xander's post.

[Are the Lancers so lax in choosing their work partners? Can one participate in such an important project just on the virtue of relationships and even appear on the list of partners? Do you think we're fools?]

[Do the Lancers choose their work partners based on how they look? I think I fit too!]

It II

Such remarks abound.

Xander even tried to reason with them.

Rosalie simply read a few articles and frowned before sending Xander a message. [Don't worry about me. I'll handle it myself.]

On the other end, Xander was replying to the netizens' bombardment with an ugly expression when he suddenly received the message from Rosalie. He was wholly puzzled. [This matter started because of me. How can I just stand by and watch?]

Rosalie smiled weakly. [It's enough for them to drag me alone. If you continue, I'm afraid the Lancers will also be dragged into the mud and I'll be culpable when the time comes.]

Reading the message, Xander frowned again and glanced at public opinion across the internet.

Indeed, because of what he did, this incident that was originally aimed at only him and Rosalie had now included the Lancers.

If this continued, the Lancer family's long-established reputation would probably be destroyed in one fell swoop.

Seeing this situation, Xander considered it in his heart for a long time and chose to remain silent in the end. Yet, he could not just stand by and watch. [Then I'll go check if there is a connection between the Hudsons and this matter.]

Rosalie agreed.

When everyone saw that Xander was now silent, they flooded the research institute's social media account and asked Rosalie to step forward and explain it herself.

Yves, of course, could not allow these people to slander Rosalie. Seeing them repeatedly challenge Rosalie's medical skills, Yves directly posted the major projects that Rosalie had led the research institute to completion.

Most of the netizens were laymen. Even if he posted them in black and white, many did not actually go and read them.

Even if there were one or two sensible ones who did, they were quickly drowned in the abuse.

