

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 776

“Just what are you thinking?”

Byron’s voice was a little hoarse.

When he heard Rosalie come out of the room just now, he pretended to be asleep. In his hurry, he forgot that he had only covered himself halfway with the blanket.

He did not actually expect the woman to come over and try to cover him up.

He was still annoyed with this woman’s relationship with other men just not long ago, but he felt his heart soften just now because of the tenderness the woman showed.

Rosalie was stunned for a few seconds. Then, she abruptly reacted and subconsciously lifted her hand to push back at him. However, she was hugged even tighter and was unable to struggle at all.

Byron’s voice continued in her ears, “when are you going to accept me?”

Hearing these words, Rosalie was shocked and turned to look at the person close to her. Her brows were raised slightly and her tone lowered by a few notches, “Byron, you’re not completely awake yet. Let me go!”

The man sneered inexplicably. “You provoked me first.”

Hearing this, Rosalie was for a moment baffled. Thinking of what happened just now, she reacted belatedly. “You weren’t asleep?”

Byron raised his brows slightly and smiled noncommittally. “I was thinking about what Nox said in his sleep just now. It might not be impossible to make it come true.”

Rosalie thought of the little boy’s confused address just now. Hearing the man’s words again, her heart constricted as she struggled harder. “Nox was just talking in his sleep. President Lawrence, don’t take it to heart...”

“As you said, those two children were born without a father. Estie was also born without a mother.”

He gave the person in his arms a meaningful look when he brought Estie up before continuing, “It just so happens that the children don’t disagree with you and me. You should consider me, Miss Jacobs, even if it’s for the children’s sake..”

Rosalie felt a turmoil deep down. The scale in her heart was gradually tilting toward the man.

Indeed, none of the three children had a complete family. If she really got together with Byron, she could at the very least make it up to Lucian and Nox and let them be with their biological father.

Thinking of Estie, Rosalie felt a lump in her heart. “If it’s possible, the children would want to be with their biological parents even more.”

She still did not know who Estie's biological mother was.

She had relied on such despicable means back then to get into Byron's bed.

She wondered how the woman managed it so that she could give Byron Estie before leaving so freely.

Moreover, Byron's love for Estie also made Rosalie suspect his feelings for the little girl's biological mother.

Byron was unaware of what she was thinking. He thought that the woman was still thinking about the boys' biological father, and his tone was slightly cold, "Are you still thinking about that man?"

Rosalie snapped back to her senses and frowned in confusion.

"That man left you, mother and sons, unattended, yet you're still waiting for him?" Byron felt his heart ache, but he was also irritated. His eyes were dark and obscure.

Hearing this, Rosalie was stunned for a few seconds before she tugged her lower lip bitterly.

This man still did not know that he was the scumbag that he was mouthing off himself.

Byron did not wait for her to answer. The pressure surrounding his entirety lowered a few notches, and he did not even hide his possessiveness. "If he still dares look for you three, I won't let him go!"

No matter what the woman was thinking, as long as he was there, she would never be allowed to approach other men.

Let alone the people who had hurt her!

