

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 809

Andrius nodded simply, then glanced meaningfully at his buddy. The expression on his face became sphinxlike.

"I heard that Dr. Jacobs not only participated in the cooperation between Lancer Corporation and Heronial Corporation, but Heronial Corporation also intends to hire Dr. Jacobs as a technical consultant. I wonder what Dr. Jacobs thinks?"

Byron was hearing this for the first time.

Suddenly, his eyebrows twitched, and his expression was tenser than when they talked about Heronial Corporation. "I don't know."

He thought that after he told the woman yesterday that Andrius snatched Heronial Corporation from him, she would have some scruples over the cooperation.

'I never expected Heronial Corporation would actually invite that woman to be an official technical consultant.'

As Byron thought of the possibility of the woman agreeing to this, there was a burst of anger in his heart.

Andrius was a little surprised at his best friend's expression. "Byron, you haven't won Dr. Jacobs' heart yet, have you?"

Byron glanced at him without denying it.

Seeing this, Andrius was dumbfounded.

'With my best friend's eligibility, he can get together with any woman he wants.'

Alas, the one woman he wanted was Rosalie. Even after so much effort, he still could not win her heart.

Andrius suppressed the surprise in his heart and cleared his throat. "Ahem. After all, it was your fault six years ago, and it's inevitable that Dr. Jacobs would be careful."

When Andrius mentioned the incident six years ago, Byron's face darkened.

The woman's two drunken experiences made him realize how much harm he had caused her six years ago.

Therefore, he could look past the woman's resistance and alienation toward him.

He just wanted to know how to make up for it.

Andrius thought that his buddy would have made some progress during this period and just wanted to make a few jokes about Rosalie.

He never expected to touch Byron's raw nerve on this matter.

Looking at Byron's expression, Andrius touched his nose with a guilty conscience. "Well, there's still a chance to make amends if you've made a mistake. As long as you take the opportunity to do so, Dr. Jacobs will definitely forgive you."

Byron asked immediately. "How do I make amends?"

Andrius was stunned. He just said it casually but did not expect Byron to take it seriously...

'How to make amends? How would I know the past between you two?'

All thanks to his own big mouth for bringing this up, Andrius could only bite the bullet and come up with ideas, "since you broke Dr. Jacobs' heart six years ago, you need to make her feel that you love her if you want her to forgive you."

Byron frowned deeply. "I have done as you said."

This whole time, he had been sending her flowers and confessing to her how he felt. The three little ones had also been secretly helping him.

However, the woman just refused to believe him. Even when they parted this morning, he faintly felt that their relationship seemed to have deteriorated again.

Byron really did not know where the problem is.

Andrius choked again.

'When it comes to pursuing women, I don't have much experience.

'But compared to my stone-hearted buddy, I'm still better at it.

'What's more, I have a sister.

'Andrea is very popular among men, and she has many suitors who are crazy about her.'

Thinking about it in this way, Andrius began to brainstorm in his mind and recalled how those men pursued Andrea.

