

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 849

“Thank you.”

Xander took the tea cup she handed over and thanked her politely.

Rosalie sat on the sofa beside him and looked at him seriously. “What do you need me to do now?”

When such a big thing happened to Heronial Corporation, Xander came to look for her early in the morning. There was a need for her assistance.

However, Xander deviated from her question. “I wonder if you have any suspicions on who might be behind this matter?”

Rosalie was stunned when she heard his question.

She did have her own suspicion, but she did not know how to bring it up.

Subconsciously, she still did not want to believe that Byron would do such a thing.

“Director Spiros of Heronial Corporation told me that he suspected it was the work of Lawrence Corporation. This was because the Lawrence Corporation was provoked by Heronial Corporation breaking a contract with them at the last minute.” Xander made up Director Spiros* words, his face unchanging. 1

Rosalie frowned slightly, and did not speak.

Director Spiros<sup>1</sup> suspicion was the same as hers.

Xander glanced at her expression, and continued. “In my opinion, this may not be the case.”

Hearing this, Rosalie was puzzled again. She thought that Xander meant that the person behind the scenes was not necessarily Byron.

“Young master, you mean...” Before she could finish her words, Xander suddenly looked at her eye to eye with an inexplicable face.

When she met his gaze, Rosalie’s voice stopped abruptly, and her heart sank.

Xander said slowly, “I am more inclined to believe that I am the reason President Lawrence will take action against Heronial Corporation.”

Rosalie’s eyes flashed with confusion.

After being stunned for a long time, she asked inexplicably. “Why do you say that? Is it because the Lancer Corporation stole Heronial Corporation from him before?”

With a helpless smile, his gaze upon her changed. “Ms. Jacobs, with our current relationship, are you still pretending to be aloof with me?”

Rosalie felt dazed at the sight of him, but she did not know what he meant, let alone how to answer, so she just looked at him blankly.

Xander shook his head with a wry smile. "President Lawrence's feelings for you are obvious to anyone with a discerning eye.

Before this, I thought that my entanglement with President Lawrence was only in business. But, as I thought about it last night, you were the only other factor in this."

Having said that, Xander looked back inexplicably, and took a sip of tea from the teacup.

Rosalie felt a turmoil in her heart.

'According to Xander, I was the reason Byron would do this? I would still be involved with this man regardless?'

'But...'

Just when she wanted to convince herself that this was not because of her, Xander spoke again.

"During this time, the two of us have indeed gotten a little closer because of work, so it's not surprising that President Lawrence always misunderstands."

Xander pretended to smile calmly. "It's just that, in this way, the bridge between President Lawrence and I can be considered burned. It

After a long while, Rosalie recovered from the shock, and barely smiled at Xander. "Young Master Xander, you are overthinking this. Between President Lawrence and I, is not the kind of relationship you think..."

She wanted to explain, but she was interrupted by Xander's deep, penetrating gaze.

"Maybe it's just you who didn't think so."

Rosalie was stunned.

Xander's eyes and tone made her believe it all at once.

'Could it be that the Heronial Corporation incident had something to do with me.
