

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 899

“I’m going to pick up Lucian and Nox.”

It was uncertain how long it took before Rosalie narrowed her eyes and forced herself to speak calmly.

She really did not know how to face the man in front of her, so she could only pretend that nothing happened just now.

Byron saw that she was acting as if nothing happened, so he pulled his lower lip, intentionally revealing the wound at the corner of his mouth.

Chapter 898 Calm Down

“As long as I think it’s effective, it’s not despicable.”

After a while, Byron retracted his gaze and responded coldly.

Rosalie’s eyes trembled slightly, and she nodded self-deprecatingly. “I guess I’m not far-sighted enough.”

Byron looked at her deeply and suddenly opened his mouth again. He spoke in a much softer tone than before.

“If you’re willing, I can reserve you the position of Heronial Corporation’s technical advisor.”

Hearing this, Rosalie frowned and looked at him in confusion.

‘The man was clearly still furious just now.

‘But in the blink of an eye, he’s extending an olive branch to me.

‘Is he... giving me a chance to save the situation?’

Rosalie could not help but feel a little ridiculous over this thought.

Byron did not wait long for her answer. The hand holding her wrist tightened again.

“Whatever resources that the Lancers offered you, Lawrence Corporation can provide the same.”

Rosalie clearly felt that the surrounding pressure was gradually increasing, and her heart sank unconsciously.

After she calmed down for a few seconds, she refused calmly. “No, it’s alright. There are many better doctors than me. With Lawrence Corporation’s financial resources, it’s possible to choose a more respected doctor for this position.”

The reason Rosalie agreed to be a consultant for Heronial Corporation was only because of their project.

Since Heronial Corporation would be acquired by Lawrence Corporation, it would have nothing to do with Lancer Corporation's project.

There was no need for Rosalie to get involved.

However, in Byron's mind, these words only convinced him that the woman had chosen Xander over himself.

This made Byron deeply heartbroken, and his eyes were full of storms. 'What if I insist on having you?'

Rosalie frowned. "There are some things that Lawrence Corporation can't give me, so don't force me."

As she said that, the man suddenly came in front of her.

The two were almost toe-to-toe.

Rosalie took a step back subconsciously.

Alas, she had almost retreated to the door just now, and this step made her back up directly against the wall behind her.

Rosalie looked back subconsciously.

When she turned around again, the man had already taken this opportunity and the distance between them was so close that they could feel each other's breath.

Rosalie's eyes widened in a panic. She raised her hand and tried to push him away. "What are you trying to do? Let me go!"

Her outstretched hand was easily grasped by the man.

For a while, both of Rosalie's hands were shackled by the man and pressed on the top of her head.

Byron looked at the woman in front of him with burning eyes. "I gave you a chance!"

Then, he leaned over.

Rosalie had no choice but to watch the man's face come right in front of her.

The moment the tips of their noses touched, Rosalie trembled unconsciously.

Before she could react, a soft touch fell on her lips.

Rosalie struggled indiscriminately while trying to say something, but the man freed up a hand, grabbed her chin, and forced her to open her mouth. She could not speak a complete sentence.

Byron's kiss went deeper and deeper, and his breath on her face became hotter and hotter.

Rosalie's heart was tense, and in a panic, she bit down hard.

The next second, the man groaned, covered the corners of his lips, and backed away from her.

The two looked at each other in silence for a long time with different emotions in their eyes.

Byron pressed the corner of his bleeding mouth and looked at the woman in front of him with a heavy gaze. The darkness in his eyes did not subside. Rosalie silently pinched her palm to calm herself down.

Rosalie glanced at the corner of the man's mouth from the corners of her eyes, and her expression was flustered.

Byron pressed the corner of his mouth deeply. His eyes were cold, and he said solemnly, "I'll take you up."

Just now, he was annoyed by this woman again, and he could not control himself all of a sudden.

Right now, she almost wrote her resistance on her face.

Anger and annoyance intertwined in Byron's heart before finally turning into indifference.

The two reached a consensus and said nothing about what happened just now.

Byron turned around and walked upstairs, while Rosalie followed behind him without saying a word.

Until they reached Estie's bedroom door, neither of them spoke again.

In the room, the three little kids were tired from playing and were sitting around eating snacks.

"I'll go down and prepare dinner."

Mrs. Zora watched the little ones play all afternoon, and her heart was full. She noticed that it was almost time, so she planned to go downstairs.

Hearing this, Lucian and Nox looked at each other, feeling a little puzzled.

It's been a while. Why hasn't Mommy come yet?

'Could it be that Mommy hasn't realized that we're here with Daddy?

'If Mommy didn't look at the location, she'd be really anxious right now!'

Just when the little guys felt uneasy, Mrs. Zora turned around and opened the door. She saw the two people standing at the door.

"Master."

Mrs. Zora looked at the person beside Byron, paused, and then greeted again, "Miss Jacobs."

Rosalie reluctantly showed a slight smile and nodded to Mrs. Zora. "I'm here to pick up Lucian and Nox."

Mrs. Zora's eyes glanced over the lips of the two adults with a bit of shock in her eyes, but she quickly retracted her gaze as if nothing had happened. She turned sideways to let Rosalie into the room.

'They're inside.'

Rosalie nodded and looked into the room.

When the little guys heard Mrs. Zora's voice, they immediately got up and ran to the door, staring at the two adults eagerly.

When they saw the mouths of the two adults, the little ones tacitly snickered in their hearts.

'No wonder Mommy didn't come up for so long. So that's how it is...'

Rosalie felt the eyes of the little guys and could not help but feel sheepish.

Just when she wanted to explain, Estie's little sweet voice chirped, "Auntie!"

The next second, the little girl threw herself into the woman's arms.

Rosalie instinctively caught the little girl.

She had been worried about Little Estie all day, and now that the little girl was in front of her, she wanted to check on her situation.

Thinking of this, Rosalie squatted down cautiously and looked straight into the little girl's eyes.

Estie had waited for her the whole day, and she was prepared for the possibility of not seeing Auntie today.

The little girl did not expect that Auntie would suddenly appear in front of her. She was overjoyed. There was no trace of sadness on her face as she smiled from ear to ear.

Rosalie noticed that the redness and swelling around the little girl's eyes had not subsided. She felt a tingling pain in her heart.

"Sorry, darling. I'm late." She patted the little girl's head, her heart full of self-blame.

Little Estie shook her head vigorously, her face full of innocence. "Auntie, you got the little brothers to come to see me!"

Hearing what Little Estie said, the two little boys behind her bowed their heads with a guilty conscience and silently looked at each other.

