

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 959

Estie raised her head aside and looked at her expectantly.

Rosalie's eyes flickered twice, and when she heard Byron's words, she managed to suppress the worries in her heart.

"I see. I'll take good care of Estie these few days."

Byron nodded noncommittally, quickly said goodbye, and left.

After she watched his car go away, Rosalie brought the kids into the villa.

The three kids were already famished at this point.

Rosalie did not delay and made a quick and easy breakfast to fill their stomachs first.

After breakfast, Rosalie let the kids play by themselves. She then got up and went into the study.

She could not ignore the person who caused the kids to be infected with bacteria.

Now that Byron had placed Estie with her, she wanted to catch that person as soon as possible and relieve the potential danger around the kids.

As far as she knew, not every research institute was able to create this strain of bacteria.

'In the entire Coast City, there are only a few research institutes with this ability. I only need to focus on investigating these few institutes.'

Thinking of this, Rosalie called the researchers she knew while looking up information on the internet. She asked them about the recent development and use of this bacterium in their institute.

After she called several companies in a row, she found that the reported number and purpose of this bacteria developed by them were accurate.

In other words, their bacteria strains had not been taken out of the institute at all.

Rosalie's eyes fell on the remaining few institutes.

She did not know anyone from these institutes. It would be a little difficult to investigate them.

Just when she was thinking about how to investigate, the doorbell suddenly rang downstairs. Rosalie's thoughts were interrupted by the doorbell, so she got up and went downstairs to open the door.

Mary was standing at the door, looking slightly haggard. Once the door opened, she immediately put away the haggard look on her face. She frowned and looked up and down at Rosalie and the kids.

"Godmother!" The two kids had not seen her for a long time, and when they saw her, they immediately moved close to her.

Mary did not lower her eyes and took the kids into her arms. She checked on them carefully again. Once she was sure there was nothing out of the ordinary, she was somewhat relieved.

‘Why are you suddenly here?’ Rosalie asked in confusion.

She remembered that her best friend was working overtime yesterday. At this time, she should be catching up on her sleep.

Mary got up and said, ‘I should be asking you this. Your phone call last night didn’t make sense, then you didn’t come back. I was worried that something happened to you, so I didn’t sleep well all night.’

After her overtime shift yesterday, she deliberately came to check on Rosalie. It was already past nine o’clock in the evening, but neither her best friend nor her kids had come back.

Mary thought about it and felt uneasy. However, when she called again, Rosalie did not answer. Moreover, she did not know where they had gone camping.

She was so worried that she stayed up almost all night until the sky was slightly bright, then she barely slept for two or three hours.

As soon as she woke up, she came back to check the situation.

Fortunately, the door opened this time.

It seemed that Rosalie and the kids were not injured.

Rosalie’s face was very apologetic at her best friend’s worried look. ‘My phone ran out of battery last night.’

Mary sighed helplessly. ‘I’m just glad you’re alright.’

After that, she looked at Rosalie in confusion again. ‘Speaking of which, why did you suddenly spend the night outside? Didn’t you plan to just go for a day trip and return in the evening?’
