Chapter 41 Turning Point

After

saying these, tears actually flowed from the corners of Queenie's eyes. 1 Together with her fragile temperament, everyone felt a sense of pity for her. Just now everyone was scolding Yolande, but now when they heard Queenie's explanation and saw her so loving appearance, they could not say anything harsh. In this way, it seemed that Vanessa indeed was not a good sister, and Yolande stood up for Queenie because she was very righteous to her friends. Just as everyone began to resist continuing to chastise Yolande, Queenie looked to Vanessa and said, 'Vanessa, Yolande is not a bad girl, and she's just doing this for me. Can you forgive her this time for sake of me...'

Vanessa looked coldly at Queenie, with no mood swings in her eyes, as if all of this had nothing to do with her at all.

Seeing this, Yolande

then understood Queenie's plan and began to sob again because of grievance, lying in Queenie's arms and whispering, 'Queenie, forget it, I know what I did was wrong, no one will forgive me. You don't have to beg her anymore, it wasn't your fault in the first place, so why do you have to humble yourself?'

This on-the-spot performance of Queenie and Yolande can be described as a perfect work.

All the people present could not bear to say another word against Yolande. Not only that, they even felt that it was Vanessa who had gone too far.

A country bumpkin can't compete with princess Queenie. She deserved to be taught a lesson.

Finally, someone in the crowd couldn't help themselves.

'Vanessa, just be easy on Yolande. Yolande is not right, but she has her reasons. She wouldn't do this to you if it weren't for something you did to Queenie. Since she has apologized, why don't you just accept her apology, and do not hold on to it?' 'Yeah, accept her apologies. Who can guarantee never to make a mistake?'

'Don't overdo it. It doesn't seem good to hold on to it.' 'After all, we are all classmates, and there is no need to make a big deal out of it, not to mention that you are roomies. Let's forget about this matter.'

Turning Point

Looking at the girls' merciful look, Vanessa only felt ridiculous. She kind of know why people said that public opinion was the easiest to change.

Obviously, she was a victim from the beginning to the end, but because of a few words of the person who harmed her, she was accused of all kinds of things.

Queenie held Yolande. Seeing that everyone had been moved by their speech, the corners of her mouth revealed a smile imperceptibly. Then while the crowd was chattering, she whispered a few words in Yolande's ear.

And not long after that, Yolande pushed her away and lunged violently toward the window.

Queenie pretended to exclaim, 'Yolande!'

The crowd was also in shock.

Yolande sat on the windowsill with tears in her eyes, her knuckles white and bloodless from the force.

Queenie was so scared that she almost shouted out, 'Yolande, don't do something stupid.

Listen to me, will you come down? We have forgiven you, you can't kill yourself because of such a small thing!'

Yolande shook her head, tears hanging on her little face, looking as miserable as she could be.

'No, you don't have to persuade me, Queenie. There is no point in me to live anymore because everyone knows what I did something so badly. Vanessa will never forgive me, you might as well let me simply jump from here once and for all.'

With that, she made a gesture to jump down.

And her action also made everyone's heart miss a beat. All of them were looking at her, afraid that she would really jump.

There was even someone who simply reached out to push Vanessa. 1

Vanessa felt someone approaching her and subconsciously dodged to avoid it.

That girl was getting even angrier, pointed at Vanessa, and said, 'Vanessa, do you even have a heart or not! Even this was all Yolande's fault, so what? Did she cost you anything? Do you have to be like this? Do you have to drive her to death before you will stop?' "

"That's right! You are too cold blooded! Are you still a human being!?"

Everyone was angrily accusing Vanessa of being cold-blooded.

Vanessa stood in the middle of the crowd, her eyes still indifferent, and she coldly glanced at the crowd.

Until someone shouted, "The teacher is coming! Get out of the way!"

The head of the Music Department heard the news and hurried upstairs, and his heart thumped after seeing the scene at this point. 'Someone tell me what the hell is going on here! Why is she going to kill herself?' Queenie had been choked with sobs and fell to the ground, not be able to even stand up straight. A classmate held her up and kept reassuring her.

Vanessa faintly glanced at Queenie, an ambiguous smile appeared on the corners of her mouth, and nobody knew what she was thinking.

Only there were no emotions in that pair of eyes. Within a short time, someone had already briefly told the head of the department about the whole thing.

The head of the department looked at Yolande again and couldn't help but feel some headaches. He hurriedly suggested, 'Yolande, the biggest thing in the world is not as important as human life! Why do you want to jump so easily? Come down there!' Yolande shook her head. She got cold sweat all over and her face was pale to the point of bloodlessness.

Cold-blooded

'No, just leave me alone. I really don't want to live anymore. What's the point of living like this? Even if you guys don't blame me, Vanessa will. I can't face everyone anymore.'

Hearing this, the head of the department immediately went to Vanessa and rebuked, 'Are you done with this! She's about to jump and probably will die, what more do you want! No matter what she did to you, you don't have to force her to death, do you?! Go apologize to her and get her to come down!' Staring the middle-aged and angry face of the head of the department, Vanessa laughed, 'Me? Why should I apologize to her? What did I do wrong? Am I not the victim?'

But her words completely pissed off the crowd.

'Vanessa, is your heart made of stone?' 'Probably iron!'

'She's so heartless, isn't she? Yolande only made one mistake, and you want to put her to death! Even if you hate her the most, you don't want her dead, right? She's also the little princess for her parents, why don't you value her life at all?' The head of the department was desperately anxious when he saw that Vanessa was just sitting by, so he could only have someone to call the police while comforting Yolande.

Vanessa listened to their words and only felt that they were stupid.

Yolande didn't look like she was going to jump at all.

If she wanted to jump, she would have done it already, so why did she have to crap her pants for so long?

And from the strength of her grip on the windowsill, as well as her posture on the windowsill, she was afraid that she would fall. She wasn't even trying to kill herself! This group of people was too easily confused by the appearance in front of them, and simply can't see the truth. All they could do was blame her.

Chapter 43 Call the Police

After receiving the alarm, firemen and police officers had been quickly mobilized. Yolande even wasn't trying to kill herself. So when the firemen and police officers arrived, she was naturally rescued from the windowsill. She wiped her tears while holding the fireman's shoulders, looking like she was in a state of shock.

Only the smugness in her eyes couldn't be concealed while she glancing at Vanessa from time to time.

After Yolande was rescued, everyone rallied around to comfort her.

The more tender and helpless Yolande appeared to be, the more everyone felt that Vanessa was too cold blooded.

'Yolande, don't feel too bad. We've known each other for so long, and we all know you're not a bad person. You did it just because you were too angry and wanted to take it out for your best friend, so what's wrong with it? She is the one who's wrong.'

'Yeah, she is not even willing to admit her mistake until now, she is simply unrepentant!'

'It's a good thing that nothing happened to Yolande, otherwise, we all wouldn't be able to forgive Vanessa!'

On the other hand, Vanessa's overly calm and unreasonable performance just now also made the head of the department very annoyed.

He simply called Vanessa into her office. Out of his expectation, Vanessa walked to the office and sat down on the sofa before he could speak.

'If you have something to say, say it now. I don't have much time.'

She leaned lazily on the sofa, not thinking of herself as a student who did something wrong. Seeing her look like this, the head of the department was getting angrier, and slapped heavily on the table. A glass was shaken on the table and nearly tipped over a few times, spilling a lot of water stains on the table.

Call the Police

The head of the department's chest trembled with anger, pointed at Vanessa and said angrily, 'Look at you! Do you still look like a student?! Yolande is indeed not right! But you pushed her to the edge, is this the right way?!'

Vanessa rubbed the bracelet on her wrist and raised her eyes to look at the head of the department.

'Did I force her? Did I tell her to jump?' 1

'You!'

The head of the department didn't expect her to say that and was so mad that he couldn't say a word.

Although he went over late, but also knew that it was Yolande herself climbed on the windowsill at that time.

Vanessa continued with a cold snort, 'Am I not a victim of this? I was the one who spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to treat my roommate a dinner out of the goodness of my heart, and I was the one who ended up with a reputation for showing off my wealth and bullying my classmates, and I also was the one who got caught in a school-wide net violence. Has anyone ever cared about me for a moment?'

'I'm just telling the truth and proving my innocence. Did I do it wrong?'

Her voice was cold without a hint of ups and downs, but her words were very organized, laying out what she had held back and what she had suffered.

She also wanted to ask him how it was her who was wrong in the end.

The head of the department was a bit speechless. It seemed that there was indeed nothing wrong with what Vanessa was doing.

But after all, she was the head of the department, the incident was caused by Vanessa, and Yolande nearly jumped from the building in the afternoon. If this matter got out, how much impact it would have on the school can be imagined.

'I never said she was right, but she has also admitted her mistake in front of everyone, you should not be too pushy, and should accept it when she apologized.'

'Huh...'

Hearing what the head of the department said, Vanessa couldn't help but let out a cold laugh from her lungs.

She sat up straight and looked firmly at the head of the department, her voice was neither humble nor pushy, 'She apologized and I'm supposed to accept it? Why the

Chapter 44 Legal Provision

'I believe there's no legal provision in our country says that a person who has made a mistake only needs to apologize, and the victim must forgive her. So if I kill someone, does an apology can spare me from going to jail?' 1

For the first time, the girl's eloquence gave the head of the department a sense of oppression, and the girl was her student.

He once again angrily slapped the table a few times, trying to interrupt Vanessa's words, "That's sophistry! Did Yolande kill someone? She just made a small mistake. How can you compare it with homicide?" Vanessa collectedly met his gaze, that pair of black eyes of her was like being able to see through the human heart. The head of the department had a surprising feeling of panic while meeting those eyes.

"A small mistake? Have you ever been subjected to net violence in school? Do you know how much damage net violence has done to me? Have you ever been isolated by all the students, who pointed at your back when you go out? I am still sitting here, but if I can't bear all this and commit suicide, who will be responsible for this? Is it Yolande or you? Can the trauma I have endured be offset by an apology? Please be clear about this, s he is the one who apologized to me and I have the right to accept it or not!" Every word she uttered was very firm, and every sentence seemed to be a sharp sword plunged straight into the heart of the head of the department.

Facing Vanessa, whose words were so sharp, the head of the department could not help but take a step backward.

Yes, how can all of this be counted as Vanessa's fault?

It's her freedom to forgive or not to forgive those who hurt her, wasn't it?

Faced with Vanessa, the head of the department finally no longer had any position to accuse her.

Vanessa straightened out the hair hanging behind her head and her clothes, sat up from the sofa, and said, "So, I'll just leave you to it." With that, she left at the surprised look of the head of the department. The head of the department's chest kept heaving with anger, but in the end, there was nothing she could do about Vanessa.

Legal Provision

Later that afternoon, Yolande's parents came to the school with his brother to make a fuss.

Her mother simply went to the principal's office and insisted that the school should give them an explanation.

Why did her daughter want to jump off a building? And who should be blamed for this whole thing?

The principal was so anxious that he sent someone to reassure Yolande's family while thinking of a solution to the matter.

And this matter was once again set off a very high degree of heat. That post online was just a big hit on the campus forum, but this incident was not as simple as just a post.

Relevant news all over the city was reporting it, and almost all other universities were following this scandal of University A.

And Vanessa was also considered thoroughly famous.

She sat in the living room, watching the TV with no expression on her face. Listening to the newswoman's self-righteous over-comprehending statement, she was surprisingly felt nothing.

It was as if it wasn't about her, but about something that had nothing to do with her.

Edgar's brain was almost exploded as he listened, and he instantly bounced up from the sofa and rushed out in a fury, cursing while walking, 'Fuck! Those motherfuckers, how dare they smear my boss like this! We have already spared them last time, but they just don't know how to back off a bit! Were they afraid of that slut being dead? I might just shut her mouth up forever!'

Chapter 45 Be Bullied

It's just a human life, wasn't it? 1

He could just find some random reason to simply send her to death, saving so much trouble.

Anyway, he was already disgusted with Yolande to the core. She was just an ordinary bitch, and she dared to bully his boss. She was simply looking for death.

'Edgar'

However, just as Edgar was about to step out of the door with one foot, Vanessa suddenly stopped him.

'Get back.'

Edgar was furious, but confused about the boss's behavior, not knowing what to do.

He then simply stomped his feet in anger and sat at the doorway. 'Boss, why are you stopping me? Did you not see how her parents say about you, and how those students accuse you? It's terrible. Why don't you just let me kick the Allen family out of the city forever and be done with it?! Didn't they say you were bullying them? I just grant their wishes.'

Just then, the cell phone on the table suddenly rang. Vanessa took a glance and found it was the principal. The principal got tied up with this matter either.

Originally it was just a small matter, but now it was blazed all over the daily papers, even other universities were seeing the jokes of University A.

And the officers in the city hall were watching him see how he was going to solve the matter.

So, even though he was clear that Vanessa was innocent, he still had to call her.

‘Vanessa, you know all about Yolande’s family coming to school, right?’ ‘Uh–huh.’”

“This matter has now attracted a lot of attention from the society, and I, as the principal, must come up with a solution. I also tried many ways to pacify her family, but in the end, nothing worked. So why don’t you just apologize to her family, and they ask for a million dollars in compensation...” (1

Be Bullied

After the principal said this, it was silence, endless silence. Vanessa did not say anything but looked not good. Edgar was not far from Vanessa, so he vaguely heard what the principal said. He immediately couldn’t help but roar, ‘That’s bull shit! It was she who did such a nasty thing and got exposed, and she wanted to kill herself, but that’s none of our business! Compensation? They should be the ones to compensate us!’”

The principal swallowed and knew that the proposal was not reasonable and that Yolande’s family was asking too much.

Even if Vanessa was somewhat pushy, so that Yolande can’t stand it and wanted to commit suicide, her family can’t ask for such a high price of one million. For the Simmons family, this amount may be nothing, just a few meals. But for an ordinary family, a million dollars was huge!

The Allen couple just said it in the blink of an eye. ‘Here’s the deal, Vanessa. One million is too much, our school bear half a million for you, and you only need to pay half a million and then apologize.’ Vanessa’s finger pinched the phone slightly hard, and her clear face was like covered a layer of ice.

‘Apologize? For what?’”

The principal tried hard to hear some emotion in her words, but her tone was just too calm.

So calm that no one can hear a trace of joy or anger.

‘I know you feel wronged, but after all, you have to let the heat of the moment pass, don’t you? You apologize, and this will come to an end. People will gradually forget, and it will not cause any impact on you.’”
